Plasma IQ treatment on forehead wrinkles

REPORT SUMMARY

PATIENT

A 46-year-old female presented with forehead lines, periocular wrinkles, and upper eyelid laxity.

TREATMENTS

She strongly preferred non-toxin alternatives, having last received botulinum two years prior and plasma one year earlier. Plasma IQ was applied in a point-by-point technique (Low Mode, Level 1) in a single session, inducing controlled micro-injuries with minimal thermal spread.

RESULTS

The treatment resulted in reduction of forehead lines, improvement of periocular fine lines, upper eyelid tightening, and overall skin rejuvenation with high tolerability and no adverse effects.
